This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. INTRODUCTION

"The Proper Study of Mankind Is Man"—Pope.

IN this maxim of the poet lies the incentive for this work. The idea is the development of a remark made by one of the most prominent librarians of the world, to the effect that there existed a great demand for a "WHO'S WHO" of an international character. For nearly a century past various attempts have been made by reputable publishers to produce an adequate biographical dictionary, but however laudable and useful have been the productions, until the advent of THE INTERNATIONAL WHO'S WHO, they have all been marked with the grave defect of provincialism.

The educated Frenchman has little use for a Who's Who in France, for, being a reader of the daily press, he is fairly well acquainted with the living celebrities of the Republic. What he wants to know is Who is Who in England, America, Australia, and other places. The same may be said of the intelligent public of other lands. To supply this information the only "Who's Who" worth considering must necessarily be international in character. The demand for a standard biographical dictionary such as THE INTERNATIONAL WHO'S WHO has proven itself to be, has been increasing with the closer contact between men and women of all lands through modern travel, invention and journalism. Geographical miles no longer limit the acquaintance of man with man's achievements; and the man or woman who reaches distinction in any branch of endeavor, becomes a citizen of the world, with whom it is not only a privilege but an honor to become acquainted. There are no local boundaries to mental or moral greatness; therefore, we honor genius or goodness, whether it is developed in Siberia or Chicago.

The newspaper editor of today, in announcing, this evening, the death occurring within the hour, of a prominent personage in any part of the world, is enabled to give to the public a complete history of the person referred to. This is made possible by the biographical dictionary, and shows only one of the many uses of a work of this character. In our public and school libraries the biographical dictionary is by far the most frequently consulted of any of the many standard works of reference in any line. It has grown to be indispensable.

Naturally, the first edition of THE INTERNATIONAL WHO'S WHO (Who's

Digitized by Google

Who in the World), published in London in 1910, was far from perfect. In preparing the present 1911-12 edition we have spared neither time, energy nor expense in the endeavor to introduce, through biographical sketches, the world's greatest statesmen, scientists, artists, lawyers, writers, and men of affairs, to one another, and to the rest of their fellow men and women. We do not claim perfection, and it is more than likely that the reader will recall some distinguished man or woman whose biographical sketch is omitted. A line from the interested reader would prevent a repetition of the offense. However, we invite the closest scrutiny to point out one name which is not entitled to the world-wide fame that must come from mention in a work which can be found as easily on the shelves of the Imperial Public Library of St. Petersburg, Russia, as in the reference rooms of the great libraries of the United States.

This issue contains nearly twelve thousand biographies of the world's most notable living personages, selected from all lines of achievement and thought. Those who have been kind enough to send, at our request, written data regarding themselves, have shown a carefulness thoroughly consistent with modesty, realizing that we owe it to others to present the information at our disposal as accurately as possible.

We have included in this issue a limited number of portraits, with a view of demonstrating whether or not they will add to the interest of the work. This feature, if favorably received, we should like to make general in the next issue.

At the suggestion of the principal librarians of the world, we have produced the present edition entirely in the English language, thereby avoiding the confusion of several indices. From time to time we hope to receive further suggestions and advice, so that each new edition of THE INTERNATIONAL WHO'S WHO may be, in all respects, better than its predecessor.

Governor of the State of Connecticut (1911-13); appointed Chief Justice, 1907; professor of law at Yale University. A distinguished American authority on the Constitution of the United States and on International Law. Belongs to a notable New England family of jurists and statesmen His father, Roger Sherman Baldwin, was Governor of Connecticut and a senator of the United States. His grandfather was a judge of the same court over which the subject of this sketch now presides. Judge Baldwin is best known to thousands of American lawyers as "Professor Baldwin," because for years in association with Francis Wayland and Judge William K. Townsend, he has prepared for practice many of the most eminent members of the bar of the United States. He is an honorary Doctor of Laws of Harvard University. However, the judge's principal academic pride is that he is a Yale man, and as such his reputation is world-wide. In 1890 he was elected President of the American Bar Association. He has written many erudite treatises on various branches of jurisprudence, and has acted as member of a number of commissions for statutory revision. His best-known works are: "Baldwin's Connecticut Digest" "Illustrative Cases on Railroad Law"; and "Modern Political Institutions." The Judge is, at the date this is written, about seventy years of age, and still adding to his vast judicial learning. Married Susan Winchester, of Boston, Mass., 1865. BANCROFT, Hubert Howe:
Historian. Born Granville, Ohio, May 5, 1832, of New England ancestry, father being Ashley Bancroft of Mass., and mother Lucy (Howe) Bancroft of Vermont. With an academic education he entered a Buffalo book store in 1848, and four years later was sent by his employer to establish a publishing house in Calif., which business has since become the largest west of Chicago. While so engaged he began the collection and storage of valuable historical material. This work was continued for over forty years. Both Europe and America were ransacked, purchases made and archives copied. Places of historical interest were studied and narratives taken from the mouths of hundreds of living witnesses. In 1861, with a library of 16,000 books, maps and manuscripts, afterward increased to 60,000, when in 1905 it passed to the University of California, Mr. Bancroft with the aid of thirty assistants began the task of collaborating, sorting, sifting and classifying—a work which covered a period of thirty-five years; Mr. Bancroft at the same time being busily engaged in writing his history. This was divided into sections, each complete in itself, and the whole comprising the "Native Races of the Pacific States," 5 vols.; "History of Central America," 3 vols.; "History of Mexico," 6 vols.; "North Mexican States and Texas," 2 vols.; "California," 7 vols.; "Arizona and New Mexico," 1 vol.; "Colorado and Wyoming," 1 vol.; "Utah and Nevada," 1 vol.; "Northwest Coast," 2 vols.; "Oregon," 2 vols.; "Washington, Idaho and Montana," 1 vol.; "British Col.," 1 vol.; "Alaska," 1 vol.; "California Pastoral," 1 vol.; "California Inter Pocula," 1 vol.; "Popular Tribunals," 2 vols.; "Essays and Miscellany," 1 vol.; "Literary Industries," 1 vol. Other works were: "The Book of the Fair"; "The Book of Wealth"; "Resources of Mexico"; and "The New Pacific." All of the above comprises the most extensive literary work ever undertaken by a single individual. His History has impressed itself upon the literature of the world, being the original source for all the information given. Married, Oct. 12, 1876, Matilda Griffing, of New Haven, Conn. (died, 1910). BATES, Charlotte Fiske (Mme. Roge):
Poet, compiler and educator. Was born in New York, Nov. 20, 1838; the daughter of Hervey and Eliza (Endicott) Bates. Educated in the public schools of Cambridge, which place, at an early age, became her home. She afterward taught there for many years, taking private pupils. In 1888 she went to New York as a teacher of literature in a young ladies' seminary. It was during the holiday vacation of 1889-90 that she had a nearly fatal attack of pneumonia, so that the strong probability of death was taken for the fact, and so appeared in the newspapers. Though the dread error was quickly and publicly corrected, it crept into a cyclopædia, which repeated it twice after knowing the truth. She suffered this unparalleled literary wrong also in two editions of an English compilation of American poetry. Miss Bates' little volume, "Risk and Other Poems," issued in 1879, was long ago out of print. Contrary to the statement of a prominent cyclopædia, all Miss Bates' compilations:—"The Longfellow Birthday Book"; "Seven Voices of Sympathy," and "The Cambridge Book of Poetry and Song" were prepared wholly by herself, excepting the indexes. She assisted Mr. Longfellow in compiling "Poems of Places," and translated a number of French poems expressly for that work. Miss Bates, on June 4, 1891, married Mons. Adolphe E. Roge, who died March 8, 1896. Her present address is 304 Harvard St., Cambridge, Mass.

In company with his wife, who is known professionally as Miss Maud Amber, he has circled the world, playing in Japan, China, India, the Philippines, Great Britain and North America. Address: Care of the Vaudeville Club, 20 Charing Cross Road, London, W.C., England.

BLAKELY, William G.:
Attorney-at-law. Was born in Kortright, Delaware Co., N.Y., 1829. Educated at Delaware Academy; also graduate of State Normal School of New York. Went to gold fields of California when the excitement of 1849 prevailed throughout the country. He met with success, and after passing four years in California, returned home and paid off the mortgage on his father's farm. He then began the study of law in the office of Amasa J. Parker, at Delhi, N.Y. On completing his studies he returned to the Pacific Slope, where he followed his profession and also devoted much attention to mining. While residing near Sonora, Cal., in 1858, he discovered the Eureka Mine, where he built, and for two years operated, a quartz mill. In 1861 he removed to Carson City, Nev., and having previously pursued a thorough theological course and been licensed as a local preacher by the California Methodist Episcopal Conference, he proceeded to labor in the Nevada field. In 1861, Governor Nye appointed him Superintendent of Public Instruction for Nevada. After establishing his home in Austin, Nev., he erected one of the handsomest Methodist Episcopal churches in the territory, and for a long time officiated as its pastor. Besides his work as pastor, he continued to mine extensively, and also built a large quartz mill in Smokey Valley for the purpose of treating ore derived from the Mother Vein Mine. In 1868 he settled in Pioche, Nev., where he continued in mining and ministerial work. In 1872 he went to Arizona, and until the county seat was changed to Kingman, lived at Cerbat and Mineral Park, and there located and developed a number of mines; also practiced law. Elected Judge of the County Court, he held that important office until it was abolished by act of Legislature. Then Governor Zulick appointed him Probate Judge and ex-officio Superintendent of Schools. In 1886 he was elected District Attorney of Mohave County, and soon afterwards was appointed United States Commissioner, which position he occupied about twenty years. On the Republican ticket, in a strongly Democratic county, he was several times elected District Attorney, filling the office from Nov., 1880 until 1904. His private practice was extensive and representative, as he is the attorney for the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe at this point; also legal adviser for the White Hills Mining and Milling Co., and resident agent and attorney for a large share of the leading mining and business companies in Mohave County. Judge Blakeley is an important factor in the advancement of the cause of education and Christianity in his community. Fraternally, he is connected with the Masons, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias and Elks, besides various social organizations. He was almost unanimously elected to the Territorial Council at Phoenix, Ariz., in 1906. Address: Kingman, Ariz., U.S.A.

GEN. WILLIAM BOOTH

by a private theological tutor of the Methodist New Connection Church, London. Converted at 15; commenced immediately to preach in the open air in Nottingham. Entered ministry, 1852. After being traveling evangelist, appointed by the Conference of Methodist New Connection Church, was required to settle to their ordinary circuit work. To this he submitted for some years, but eventually, in 1861, resigned in order to again give himself to evangelistic labor. While traveling through the country he came to London and was struck by the destitute condition of the eastern portion of its population, and commenced, on the 5th of July, 1865, special efforts on their behalf. This effort was at first styled the Christian Mission, but developed in 1878 into the Salvation Army, which has grown until it has corps, circles and societies established in 56 countries and colonies, with about 21,000 officers and employees, i.e., men and women maintained for the work. In connection with this he has organized a great system for the benefit of the submerged, starving, vicious and criminal classes, which has now over 900 social institutions. Beds supplied during twelve months, over 6,000,000; meals during same period, over 11,000,000. He is the author of "Orders and Regulations for Officers and Soldiers"; "Letters to My Soldiers"; "Religion for Every Day"; "Salvation Soldiery Visions"; "In Darkest England and the Way Out" (propounding General Booth's scheme for the abolition of the pauper and dangerous classes of England); and numerous other books and pamphlets. Publications: Newspapers entitled War Cry, Young Soldier, Social Gazette and Bandsman and Songster, with a joint weekly circulation of nearly a million copies in 21 languages; monthlies with a circulation of 140,000; musical monthlies for use of Army's musicians. All the profits of publications go to support Army's various operations. Recreations: None, unless he be said to find recreation in traveling, although he works as hard at sea as he does in other forms when on land. He has five times visited United States and Canada, three times Australasia and South Africa, twice India, once Japan, and several times almost every country in Europe. Address: 101 Queen Victoria St., E.C. T.A.: Salvation, London. T.: 5102 Bank.

BOTHA, Gen. The Hon. Louis:
Prime Minister of the Transvaal. Was born at Greytown, in Natal, in 1864. He had his share of fighting as a young man, with the native tribes in that district, and after serving under the Zulu chief, Dinizulu, he settled on a farm near Vryheid, in what was then called the New Republic. This was afterwards incorporated with the Transvaal, and Botha then represented Vryheid in the Volksraad. He consistently took the more liberal view in all political matters during the years that followed, but when war broke out he led the Vryheid command and was in the first fighting around Dundee, and directed the Boers with conspicuous success at Colenso and Spion Kop, and after Joubert's death he succeeded him by his express desire as Commandant-General. After the conclusion of peace, in 1902, he visited England and Europe. When responsible government was granted to the Transvaal he became the first Prime Minister, in 1907, and went to England to represent the Colony at the Imperial Conference, his frank and loyal speeches everywhere evoking the greatst enthusiasm. BRYAN, William Jennings:

American publicist and editor. Has three times been the candidate of the Democratic party for President of the United States, each time meeting with overwhelming defeat. Mr. Bryan is a lawyer by profession, but has been too busy as a politician to distinguish himself at the bar. Even those who repudiate his political doctrines and ambition, admit that he is one of America's best citizens. He is perhaps the most eloquent and attractive orator in the United States to-day. Being yet far from old age, he still remains a presidential possibility. He was born in Salem, Ill., March 19, 1860. Married Mary E. Baird, in 1884. Has received a collegiate education. Owns and edits a weekly newspaper called The Commoner. Is a man of deep religious convictions—a Presbyterian—and occasionally preaches, and lectures on religious topics. Address: Lincoln, Neb., U.S.A.

His childhood was spent near Belfast, in the north of Ireland, and he was educated in part privately, and in part at the London High School, and University College, Nottingham. After some work as a teacher he entered Christ Church, Oxford, in 1891, and graduated with honors in Modern History and Political Science. In 1895 he became minister of the Union Street Church, Brighton. He very soon filled the church, and removed to Queen's Square Congregational Church, then without a pastor, thus forming a united church in a fine building. On Dr. Parker's death, Mr. Campbell first undertook the Thursday morning services at the City Temple, and in March, 1903, was chosen as the great preacher's successor. He has published a number of works of a theological character and his recent enunciation of "the new theology" has caused great controversy. In 1908 he announced his intention to provide a general centre and an active propaganda for the movement, and his conviction that the theological could not be separated from the sociological side of the movement. Address: Hill Lodge, Enfield, England.

CAMPBELL, Rev. Robert, D.D.:

Born near Perth, Ontario, June 21, 1835. His parents, Peter Campbell and Margaret Campbell, came from Perthshire, Scotland, in 1817. He was educated in the local school, and had the advantage of training under a first class teacher, who prepared him for college matriculation. Entered Queen's University, Kingston, in 1853, from which he graduated, first, B.A., with all-round honors, and medal in history; M.A. in 1858, and D.D. in 1887. CARPENTER, Julia Wiltberger:
Physician. Born Cincinnati, Ohio. Her paternal great-grandfather, Abraham Freeman, was an Englishman, the oldest son, and entitled to the whole inheritance. Thinking this unjust, he divided the estate equally with the other children, came to the United States, and settled in Cincinnati, owning the tract of land through which Freeman Ave. now runs. Her grandfather, Captain Joseph Carpenter, was editor and proprietor of the first Cincinnati newspaper, the Western Spy. Her father, the late Dr. Isaac Bates Carpenter, graduated at Jefferson College, in Philadelphia. Dr. Julia Carpenter chose the profession of medicine because it was open to women, and not because she preferred it above everything else, for there is no department of study that did not have some charm for her. She graduated at the Woman's Medical College in Philadelphia, and was interne one year in its hospital. After two years' study in the hospitals of Vienna and Paris she returned to Cincinnati, and began practice, Nov., 1878. Dr. Reamy then proposed her name for membership in the Academy of Medicine. She was unanimously elected, was the first woman member, and has been twice its vice-president. She is also a member of the Ohio State Medical Society, the American Medical Association and the Cincinnati Obstetrical Society, being president of the last in 1902. Her special interest in medicine is more in the causes of disease, and the trend of her thought and study is especially in the line of prevention of disease and the overcoming of it by the application of the knowledge of the body, as it is acquired. Address: 2636 Park Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.
